

No Health Without a Health Workforce. Where Does Australia Fit into the Global Health Workforce Shortage that will Exceed 12 million by 2035?

Amanda Griffiths, My Health Career

DELIVERY SKILLS AND EXPERIENCE

Since launching website My Health Career in 2012, Amanda has been an invited speaker for the Career Development Association Australia's Queensland branch, the Partnership Brokers and the Department of Education, Training and Employment. She has also spoken on the topic of careers in health in some of south-east Queensland's most prestigious schools. Amanda has been the Master of Ceremonies for an interdisciplinary university health student competition, the Health Fusion Team Challenge.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Career development practitioners who have an interest in or who work with clients in the health industry.

RELEVANCE TO THEME

An exploration of whether Australia's health workforce will be able to meet the health demands of the population in the future.

PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS MET

Labour market.

KEY LEARNING OUTCOMES

For attendees to understand the Australian health workforce and where the shortages, and, if any excesses will be in the future.

THORY/EVIDENCE BASE

Research from the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare, the Department of Health, the Department of Education and Training, as well as data from professional bodies such as the Australian Medical Association will be integrated together in a succinct and thought-provoking manner.